

Nora Alonso Casajús, biology PhD, is coauthor of 11 publications in international journals and 2 international patents. She has take part in 38 scientific meetings.

She is entrepreneur and founder of the biotechnological company Iden Biotechnology (www.idenbiotechnology.com). From June 2005 is the Managing Director and President of the company.

She coordinates the biofuels working group in the National Association of Biotechnology companies (ASEBIO). She has participated in 13 meetings about transfer of technology and Biotechnology Based Company Creation. In 2005 she was awarded with “Ideactiva 2005” award for the best innovative business project and in November 2007 with the “ENISA 25th Anniversary Innovation Award for Energy and Environment”.